Forecast for Monday 23 Jan 2023

Weather: A lot of low cloud shrouding the summits expected through the day, a little drizzly rain at times more especially in the morning. Upper Deeside around Lochnagar will stay dry with some cloud breaks. Elsewhere cloud may start to thin and break from mid-afternoon across the Perthshire hills and elsewhere after dark.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 20%, best chance across Upper Deeside

Low Cloud and visibility: Widely poor in extensive low cloud down to 300 to 600 metres, but cloud becoming more broken in the west of the area from mid-afternoon but still rather hazy visibility.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View
Thaw of any lying snow expected.

Forecast for Tuesday 24 Jan 2023
Weather: Dry with some spells of sunshine and only small amounts of low cloud, although the more western Perthshire hills are likely to be shrouded in cloud. Some patchy drizzly rain and low cloud will extend east across all areas from the west from late afternoon. Thaw of some lying snow expected.

Maximum wind: Southwesterly 20 mph in the morning freshening to 30 to 40 mph through the afternoon with summit gales likely by midnight

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 60%, best chance in the east

Low Cloud and visibility: Some patchy cloud around 500 metres, but the western Perthshire hills are likely to see persistent cloud down to 500 metres for much of the day. Cloud becoming more extensive from late afternoon onwards.

Temperature: Glens: Plus 6 rising to 9 Celsius
At 800m: Plus 5 Celsius
Freezing level: Above summits
